

1

Forbes September

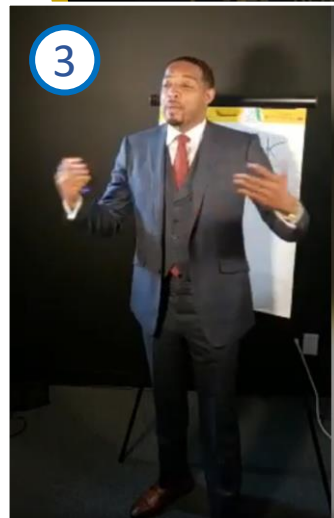

Ernestine Morrison
Co-Founder of the First African American-Owned
Real Estate
Crowdfunding Platform

TREF Co-founder and chief communications officer, Ernestine Morrison and Lead Council and VP of business affairs, Johnetta G. Paye, Esq. sat down with Forbes Magazine for an insightful article to discuss the mission and significance of the fund.

Forbes Billionaires

2

Meet The Women Who Lead The First African American-Owned Real Estate Crowdfunding Platform

4

UPDATES

FORBES

By tulsadmin | February 6, 2019

TREF Co-founder and chief communications officer, Ernestine Morrison and Lead Council and VP of business affairs, Johnetta G. Paye, Esq. sat down with Forbes Magazine for an insightful article to discuss the mission and significance of the fund. In it, these powerful executives open up about their very distinctive paths to becoming the females in charge of leading the first African American managed crowdfund in history. Laced with inspiring honesty about personal risks, wins and losses and the challenges that exist as pioneers in this category, the motivation of these brilliant visionaries makes clear why their individual leadership qualities are a right fit for the challenge.

Forbes <http://www.forbes.com/sites/meimeifox/2018/10/18/meet-the-women-who-lead-the-first-african-american-owned-real-estate-crowdfunding-platform/>